HARVARD WINS GRADUATE EIGHT

Crimson-Blue Regatta Opens on Thames-Yale Takes Freshman Four Race by 21/2 Lengths-Crowds Arriving For Big Races Today.

New London, Conn., June 28.—They set the aquatic stage today for the 46th Harvard-Yale rowing regatta, which will be held on the Thames tomorrow. The spectator fleet of yachts, revenue cutters and motor boats went into position at the finish line above the drawbridge. Two lows trains of into position at the finish line above the drawbridge. Two long trains of observation cars were handed out of the sheds and swept and dusted. The old graduate, with his red or his blue hatband, arrived in force and immediately began recounting races in which he pulled an oar, or saw or cheered from bank or river. While the undergraduate, just released from the year's studies, rushed into town for the lattest race predictions and some vacation studies, rushed into town for the latest race predictions and some vacation money to wager on his college crew.

The great race throng, heribboned and beflagged, will come tomorrow, a portion for the freshmen and varsity four cared races in the morning, but the main army for the great varsity race scheduled for a couple of hours before sundown. before sundown.

The 1912 regatta had its inception several days ago when a couple of im-promptu races between hastily made up fours were rowed over short courses off Red Top and both were won by Harvard. The regular programme be-gen this afternoon with a race for subgan this afternoon with a race for sub-stitute freshmen fours and one that was planned to be between graduate arsmen of the two universities. Both were rowed over short courses in the upper reaches of the river, and Yale prevented a Harvard sweep of the river this year by capturing the fresh-men event with two and a half lengths to share.

This event was rowed over a milirse down stream and against a derate breeze. The graduate eights' race followed The graduate eights' race followed, and Harvard won by two lengths. The Harvard boat was made up ontirely of men who had been out of rowing a year or more, and one or two of them had not pulled an oar for more than 15 years. In the Yale boat were three undergraduate substitutes of this year's crews while the eidest oarsman in the blue shell was Cowles, who rowed for Yale in the early eighties.

The graduate race was rowed over a half mile course in the fairly tast the of 2 minutes 40 seconds.
